

SAYS U. S. AIMS AT ANNEXATION

Vienna Tageblatt Declares
United States Is Committed to Imperialism.

Vienna, Austria, June 27.—(via Berlin, June 28.)—The Tageblatt, the first Austrian newspaper to comment on the Mexican situation, expresses the opinion that the United States is committed irretrievably to an imperialistic policy which aims at the annexation not only of Mexico but all Central America. It regards the present situation as merely the logical outcome of the imperialistic policy which it says was begun under the Cleveland administration and to which the United States became wedded to the Spanish-American war.

The American policy in any event, the Tageblatt says, is little short of "a conquest of polished flowers" for President Wilson at this time, handed to him just at the moment he desired to begin his campaign. The newspaper gives the greatest credit for desiring to maintain peace, but believes that if he should give in to Mexico, in the slightest degree, tantamount to American imperialism would simply sweep him out of office.

Having established, as it believes, the existence of an overwhelming imperialistic and annexationist policy in the United States, the Tageblatt proceeds to criticize it severely not because it is wrong, but because the United States is unprepared for war and because typical American haste in this case has become premature precipitancy.

HE HELPED TO SHOOT UP OLD VERA CRUZ

Was One of "Uncle Sam's"
Boys Who Assisted to Carry Out the "Watchful Waiting" Policy

Interest in the celebrated system tonic, Plant Juice, is now intense. News of the wonders it has worked in the large cities throughout the country has come to local ears and everyone is realizing that the success of this notable formula is an established fact. Every day testimonials are received speaking of the benefits that have been derived from the use of Plant Juice.

One of the most recent received is that of Mr. Alexander Brown, who lives at Hawthorne, Ind., R. R. No. 19, and who is a well-known and popular young man, as he was one of "Uncle Sam's Boys" who recently took a cruise in Southern waters to assist Gen. Huerta to salute "Old Glory" and who incidentally participated in the fighting in Vera Cruz. He said:

"For the past two years I have been a sufferer with stomach trouble. Since my service in the navy it has grown steadily worse until lately I could scarcely retain food of any kind in my stomach, as it would ferment and form gas, and I was in a generally run-down and miserable condition. A friend recommended Plant Juice, saying that it had cured him of a bad case of stomach trouble. I am sure on my bottle and can eat any kind of food, for the stomach trouble has entirely disappeared and I am in first-class condition, thanks to Plant Juice."

HIGHEST BATTLE FIELD ON EARTH

Italians Drag Big Guns to Top of High Mountain;
Fight in Eternal Snows.

Headquarters of the Italian Army, June 28.—Adamoello, which Virgil crowned "King of the Italian Alps," is the most elevated spot in the world where war has ever been waged.

Through the courtesy of the Italian general staff, which is desirous that the world outside of Italy should know the hardships of this unprecedented campaign, the correspondent of The Associated Press was the first civilian allowed to witness the fighting on this colossal mountain, which is 11,560 feet high and covered with eternal snows.

The correspondent saw the mountain swarming with thousands of white-clad Alpine soldiers singing, alert, eager, crossing glaciers, climbing craggy peaks, charging the enemy with fixed bayonets, all above the clouds.

Big Cannon on Mountain Top.

There the correspondent witnessed the action of heavy artillery, a battery of which fired from the highest point in the world where artillery had ever been used. It seemed almost a miracle that such big guns could have been transported in two months of hard labor from a distance of fifteen miles in one of the valleys below. Two hundred men had been required for the dragging of a single one of the pieces, and at one stage of the work an avalanche had swept down from the mountain sides and swallowed up the cannon and devoured 40 of the men.

The professional climber never attempted to reach the top of Adamoello, but in summer the view of the surrounding Alps with Mont Blanc, the Jungfrau, and Monte Rosa in the distance is considered the best in Europe. Winter and summer, the fighting here is under conditions that prevail only in the Arctic regions. There Austrians and Italians meet in silent death grip, their deaths and their deeds all but unrecorded save in dry army manuals given out in brief lines in the terse bulletins of Gen. Cadorna.

Never Before Such Warfare.

While the Austrian and Italian cannot rumble lazily, exchanging rude courtesies, or seeking to dislodge avalanches to better destroy and hamper the enemy, awakening echoes that leaped from dozens of miles up and down the abrupt peaks, the genial Italian colonel accompanying the correspondent remarked that in no other war had such fighting ever been seen, neither the armies of Hannibal, nor Caesar, nor Napoleon ever dared engage in such work, that their armies, which did so ever mountains not half the height, were hardly larger than a regiment of Alpine troops as today organized, that the conditions of the winter in the mountains not deal with heavy artillery, nor drag up to these fastnesses pound by pound, plank by plank, piece by piece, their food, their supplies, and the guns and ammunition.

Repeated Along 275 Mile Front.

These conditions are not limited to the Adamoello region, but repeat themselves over two-thirds of the Italian front or over a line of 275 miles of mountain chains going from the Swiss frontier down to the banks of the Isarno river from which can be seen the "hitter" line of the Adriatic, as the poet d'Annunzio described it.

Along this line titanic struggles take place daily, in which the combatants never cease. It took five days for the correspondent to slowly climb the Adamoello crest and in this period the Italians succeeded in capturing off the top of another mountain called Coidi Lama, which suddenly burst into the air with its defenders who were on their side trying to explode a mine which would blow in pieces the Italian troops.

One of the curious facts connected with this mountain front is that where have the song birds deserted it. "If I were to write home that every night I go to sleep listening to the boom of cannon I would be readily believed, but if I added that often I lie awake for hours listening to the liquid trail of friendly whistles in the nearby woods, my statement would be taken for a soldier's yarn," said an artillery officer late one night as he and the correspondent stood on the way across a wooded little valley to listen to a nightingale's song. "That song is not an exception," he explained, "I have crossed this valley a hundred times of night for weeks on my way to my quarters, and that bird is always singing, no matter how violent the artillery noise."

In the upper mountain districts the correspondent noted that the skylarks held to their usual haunts with the same tenacity as the nightingales of the lower country, flying high in the air until they went out of sight above the snowy peaks, apparently undisturbed by the whizzing of the shells that went through the air hundreds of feet above the soldiers.

FRENCH CHECK GERMAN ASSAULT

Paris, France, June 28.—German troops last night delivered another attack on the French positions near Fleury on the sector of the Verdun front over which violent fighting has been in progress for several days. The assault was checked by the French fire, the war office announced today.

There was spirited fighting near the Thiaumont work which the Germans captured several days ago but no chance took place in the situation there.

West of the Meuse there was no infantry fighting of importance. Artillery engagements occurred in the sector between Aycoourt and Chantancourt.

The statement adds: "South of Lassigny the Germans endeavored last night to deliver several surprise attacks upon minor French posts. All their efforts failed."

In the Champagne district, a strong reconnoitering party of the enemy which was trying to reach our lines along the road from St. Hilaire-Grand to St. Supplet was dispersed."
